Growth Strategy for Q2 2026 – Q4 2026

CodeAlpha Business & Marketing Strategy Internship — Task 2

---

1. Executive Summary

Durrah.ng is an Abuja-based jewelry and accessories brand that has demonstrated exceptional early-stage growth, generating ₦315,000 in revenue across 126 units sold within its first five months (November 2025 – March 2026). With a consistent 30% profit margin and revenue growing at 112.5% over the period, the brand now stands at a pivotal inflection point ready to transition from word-of-mouth driven growth to a structured, scalable business model.

This proposal outlines a comprehensive business growth strategy for Durrah.ng covering the period April 2026 to December 2026 (Q2–Q4). It defines clear business objectives, prescribes a full Marketing Mix (4Ps) framework, identifies optimal digital channels, and maps out both short-term and long-term growth strategies to position Durrah.ng as a leading premium jewelry brand in Abuja's fashion market.

2. Business Objectives

Durrah.ng's growth strategy is anchored on four core business objectives:

#	Objective	Key Result (Target by Dec 2026)
1	Revenue Growth	Achieve ₦800,000 in monthly revenue by Q4 2026 (from ₦85,000 in March 2026) a 10x growth target
2	Brand Visibility	Grow Instagram following to 5,000+ and achieve 20% of sales via Instagram (currently 5%)
3	Product Expansion	Launch at least 2 new product lines (e.g., customised/personalised pieces, luxury gift sets)
4	Customer Retention	Implement a loyalty/referral programme with a 30% repeat customer rate by end of 2026

3. Marketing Mix (4Ps) Strategy

The 4Ps framework provides a structured approach to Durrah.ng's market positioning and commercial execution:

3.1 Product

Core Product Strategy

Durrah.ng's current portfolio (rings, earrings, bracelets, necklaces, leg chains, waist beads, wristwatches, jewelry sets) provides a strong foundation. The following product developments are recommended:

- Introduce Personalised/Custom Pieces: Offer name necklaces, initial rings, and custom-engraved bracelets. Customisation commands a 25–40% price premium and drives strong organic social sharing.
- Relaunch Jewelry Sets as Curated Gift Boxes: Package sets in premium gift boxes for the gifting occasion market. This addresses the severely underperforming Jewelry Sets category (only 3 units in 5 months).
- Develop a Signature Collection: Create a limited, named collection unique to Durrah.ng (e.g., 'The Abuja Edit') to build brand identity and exclusivity.
- Quality Packaging Upgrade: Invest in branded pouches, boxes, and thank-you cards. Packaging is a key driver of unboxing content, which fuels organic Instagram and TikTok marketing.

3.2 Price

Pricing Strategy

Durrah.ng currently operates at a 30% profit margin a healthy baseline. The recommended pricing strategy for the growth phase is Value-Based Tiered Pricing:

Product Tier	Product Examples	Price Range (₦)	Target Margin
Entry	Waist beads, simple earrings	₦2,000 – ₦5,000	25%
Core	Rings, bracelets, necklaces	₦5,000 – ₦15,000	30%
Premium	Custom pieces, wristwatches	₦15,000 – ₦40,000	35%
Luxury Gift	Curated jewelry sets, gift boxes	₦25,000 – ₦60,000	40%

Festive pricing strategy: Implement premium pricing (+10–15%) during peak periods (Valentine's, Eid, Christmas) when demand spikes and price sensitivity decreases. Offer early-bird discounts to WhatsApp subscribers to reward loyalty.

3.3 Place (Distribution)

Multi-Channel Distribution Strategy

Durrah.ng must evolve from a single-channel (WhatsApp-dominant) model to a structured multi-channel presence:

Channel	Current Share	Target Share (Dec 2026)	Action
WhatsApp	65%	50%	Formalise with WhatsApp Business API, catalogue & broadcast lists
Physical/In-person	30%	20%	Maintain, explore pop-ups at Abuja markets & events
Instagram	5%	25%	Invest in Reels, Shopping, and influencer collaborations
Website/Online	0%	5%	Launch product catalogue site with WhatsApp order button

3.4 Promotion

Promotional Mix

- Content Marketing: Post 5x per week on Instagram (product photos, Reels, styling tips, behind-the-scenes). Establish a consistent visual brand identity with a signature colour palette and logo.
- Influencer Marketing: Partner with 3–5 Abuja-based fashion/lifestyle micro-influencers (5,000–80,000 followers). Use product gifting or a 10–15% affiliate commission model.
- WhatsApp Broadcast Campaigns: Segment customers into groups (VIP buyers, new customers, gift buyers) and send targeted campaign messages for new arrivals, restocks, and seasonal promotions.
- Seasonal Promotions: Run structured campaigns for Valentine's Day (Feb), Eid (Apr/Jun), Independence Day (Oct), and Christmas (Dec) with themed collections and limited-time offers.
- User-Generated Content (UGC): Incentivise customers to post their Durrah.ng purchases on Instagram by offering a 5% discount on their next order for a tagged post. This builds social proof organically.

- Paid Instagram Ads: Allocate ₦15,000–₦25,000/month to Instagram and Facebook ads targeted at Abuja-based women aged 18–40 with interests in fashion, beauty, and accessories.

7. Conclusion

Durrah.ng has built a remarkable foundation in just five months ₦315,000 in revenue, 30% profit margin, and 126 satisfied customers. This is not luck; it reflects a genuine product-market fit and the power of community-driven WhatsApp commerce. The challenge and opportunity now is to scale this success intentionally.

The strategies outlined in this proposal from activating Instagram commerce and launching personalised product lines, to running seasonal campaigns and eventually expanding to Lagos provide a clear, executable roadmap for Durrah.ng to reach ₦1.6 million+ in annual revenue by December 2026.

The most critical immediate action is Instagram activation. Every week of delay is a week of potential customers discovering a competitor instead. Combined with the power of WhatsApp's existing network, a well-executed Instagram presence will unlock Durrah.ng's next chapter of growth.

Durrah.ng is not just a jewelry business it is a brand in the making. With the right strategy, 2026 can be the year it becomes a household name in Abuja's fashion scene.
